

GOODRICH AND MARSTOW PARISH BOUNDARIES Doc RTR17 Hooper's Judgement on bounds of Goodrich & Marstow 1815

'beginning at the Cross Roads near the Newhouse in the parish of Goodrich proceeding along a lane adjoining the Brook Luke and up the said lane into the Turnpike road on the top thereof taking the lands on the right into Goodrich and those on the left into Marstow thence along the Turnpike road towards Pencraig leaving the Stephouse in Marstow and going on the said road to an Old Stone opposite the Barn belonging to John Vaughan thence crossing the said road and through the stable and by the side of the said Barn leaving the House Stable and other buildings of the said John Vaughan in Marstow and the Barn and Lands on the right in Goodrich thence straight across Vaughan's orchard to a tree on the top of Mr Dew's wood (which tree is marked) on through the wood leaving a quarter of an acre thereof on the right in Goodrich to an Old Stone in the corner of the hedge of Giddis meadow taking the said hedge as the boundary to the River Wye. up the river to the Triple Oak and New Stone there which is near the middle space of Mr Dew's wood and thence up through the wood to the corner of Mr Dew's orchard leaving the said orchard on the right in Goodrich along the hedge thereof into and across the Turnpike road to an Old Stone in the hedge of a croft of Mr Gurney nearly opposite Mr Dew's farmhouse (which said croft with the dwelling house of Mr Gurney and Mr Dew's farmhouse are in Marstow) from thence along the Turnpike road to the Arbour Elm turning to the left along the road of Husbandry leading to the Common Field leaving the Arbour farm in Goodrich and taking into Goodrich part of the Common field and going in a right line to a New Stone in a corner of the Slads (across the Slads angleways) to a New Stone in the hedge at the top of a piece called the Nine Acres then through the said nine acres leaving three acres thereof on the right in Goodrich and the residue on the right in Marstow then to a New Stone in the corner of a field projecting in the said nine Acres and from thence in a straight line across an Orchard and a small Wood to a Holly tree in the Hedge of the said Wood and continuing the same straight line to a New Stone at the Brook Luke next to a rough Copse there from the said stone continuing up Luke to another New Stone where a rough copse is, at the bottom of lands called the Mill Grounds thence up the said Mill Grounds to a New Stone in the bottom of Little Croker's Oak and across Little Croker's Oak to a New Stone in the hedge of Upper Croker's Oak from thence in a direct line to the corner of Walter Holmes thence up to the hedge (leaving Walter Holmes on the right) to another New Stone in the hedge in the corner of the Ricks (the Ricks being wholly in Goodrich) thence turning short to a New Stone in the corner of the hedge dividing the Arbour lands and Upper Croker's Oak then turning short to the right and going in a straight line along the hedge into a road of husbandry and along the said road of husbandry to the Turnpike road and so round to the Turnpike house taking the same into Goodrich and going across and along to an Old Stone in the corner of the garden wall of Pencraig Court from hence by the garden wall along the side of an Old Road Way leaving Pencraig Court in Marstow and taking in a quarter of an acre of land belonging to the same near the garden wall there into Goodrich and thence along a ditch or ancient road which divides the wood belonging to Pencraig Court and Mr Dew in a direct line down to the river Wye to a New Stone there and along down the river to the aforesaid New Stone at the Triple Oak Having thus terminated the boundary so far. Then for a while quitting the line of boundary return up the river to the side of Brookhill Acre next Little Ash Meadow where the boundary recommences and so along Brookhill Acre by the side of Ash Meadow Hedge to a New Stone there and then turning short to an Old Division Stone in Brookhill Acre thence in a direct line across Brookhill Acre and up the pasture Bank belonging to Pencraig Court and through the plantation by an Old Ash Tree where a New Stone is in the hedge and across the Turnpike road straight through Smith's garden and across the road leading from Pencraig to Glewstone to an Old Stone in the hedge. Thence to the right along the road a short way to Voice's cottage going around and taking in the said cottage and garden to Goodrich and then on along the said road to Glewstone to a Yew Tree on the left in the hedge of filed now held by Mr Dobles with Little Ash Farm thence turning short to the right across the road and through Roberts's Garden (the house of Roberts being in Marstow) in a direct line across the Turnpike road to the right hand corner of a barn called Gwynn's Barn (which is in Goodrich) now in the occupation of Mr Banfield as tenant to Mr Jones of Sugwas, thence along the Turnpike road towards Ross to a New Stone in the corner of Mr Lloyd's Orchard at Mount Craig then across the said orchard to an Old Stone in the Wall of Mr Lloyd's Back Building next to the road leading to Glewstone, then turning back along the said road towards Pencraig to the aforesaid Yew Tree in the hedge of Mr Dobles' field and from the said Yew Tree across the said field to a New Stone at the top of Newton's Row going in a direct line from the said stone down the hedge of Newton's Row to a New Stone at the bottom of little Gover's thence to and sloping across Great Gover's to Gover's bridge.